She's always up to date on current trends.

And together, they share a lovely and rewarding life. Today I'm reviewing STPicker v3.8.1 (also known as "beta"). The time has come, that I'll start reviewing free apps, because as we all know, free apps are the best. This is no exception, because STPicker is a great tool for creating a simplified, clean and efficient record management. Features STPicker – is an app that allows you to create and manipulate pickers in order to organize all your information into sub-folders. Innovative and well thought design that's built using modern and minimalist components. Define what you want to select (string, number, date, color, yes/no...), and choose a color to designate your selection. There are two elements to each STPicker: a data selector and a layout. The data selector provides your choices, while the layout provides how the elements should appear in the STPicker itself. The STPicker element displays the available data and gives you the ability to select a single choice or a range. If you want to select a range of elements, make sure to double-click the element's name. When you click on an element, it will be placed on a new row, which will be automatically labeled. The app uses Google's Material Design language. The interface is organized in six colors, and each color, depending on the element, will display the corresponding data. Here's the feature list, so you know how the app works:

Lightweight automatic and semi-automatic pistols, commonly known as compact guns, are known in the art. Typically, such pistols are in the form of relatively small caliber, compact pistols. Such pistols are generally manufactured in approximately 8.5 to 10 inch long cylindrical barrels, which may be concealed under a coat or jacket, and in an overall length of approximately 12 to 14 inches. Typical light weight automatic and semi-automatic pistols have a length to barrel diameter ratio of between 0.48 and 0.52. Such compact pistols are desirable, as such guns can be easily carried in a coat pocket or trousers. The compact pistol known in the art has a slide reciprocating on a receiver defined by a generally tubular grip having a firing chamber at the proximal end thereof. A barrel generally extends from the distal end of the grip. The barrel has a diameter in the range of approximately 0.37 to 0.39 inches and a length in the range of approximately 0.33 to 0.39 inches. The barrel has a tapered inner diameter from the proximal end thereof to the distal end thereof. The tapered diameter of the barrel provides for a relatively smooth feeding of cartridges from the magazine into the firing chamber. The grip is formed with a handgrip that is generally cylindrical in shape. The handgrip includes a finger grip portion. The finger grip portion is configured to be gripped by the user when the pistol is being fired. The finger grip portion has a length in the range of approximately 0.5 to 0.8 inches and a diameter in the range of approximately 0.22 to 0.38 inches. The finger
