This page contains essential information about NinjaTrader 7 Keygen and serial code. online practice test and demo for test your knowledge about NinjaTrader 7.Q: How to do concurrent request to same server using different IP I have a server that I want to make concurrent request to from the different IP. Currently my server only accepts requests from the different IP. I want to make concurrent request to same server using different IP. I am using spring boot, Java and tomcat. I am new to spring boot, and tried to make something myself in server side. My current server code: public class TestServer { public static void main(String[] args) throws Exception { Thread t1 = new Thread(new Request(0)); t1.start(); Thread t2 = new Thread(new Request(1)); t2.start(); } } And my Request code: public class Request implements Runnable{ public void run(){ HttpClient httpClient = HttpClientBuilder.create().build(); HttpResponse response = httpClient.put("", getAlivePayload()); } } A: The browser is only one IP, you will need to have different IPs connected to different hosts, otherwise you can only use the one IP. You can have more than one instance of Tomcat and Apache listening to different ports, or you can connect to the same host but different ports. If you want to have different IPs that will perform requests to the same host and same ports, you will need to open an IP range, to have public IPs that will access your server. From the tomcat documentation Multiple instances of Tomcat can be used on the same server. So it is possible to have multiple web application contexts or WAR files which can share the same JNDI and security resources. On the Apache side you can see how to make a load balancer using Apache httpd 6-7 but I couldn't tell you how many. I honestly lost count somewhere around
